Endodontics is a specialty of dentistry that involves treatment of the diseases of the tooth pulp (root canal system), thus the name "root canal therapy." Commonly perceived as a painful procedure, a "root canal" is often the humorous standard to which unpleasant tasks in life are compared. Modern endodontics, however, allow us to treat the majority of teeth with little discomfort. Nonetheless, we realize you may not have been looking forward to your visit so we will make every effort to ensure your comfort, see you promptly, and provide you with the best possible care.
